

2011 Urbanite Project Application

Thank you for your interest in joining the Urbanite Project. All submissions are due June 30, 2010.

Basic information about the project:

The Urbanite Project is your chance to dream big and to work with a partner to share that dream with the city. The Urbanite Project isn't necessarily devoted to addressing problems in Baltimore: You don't have to solve anything, although you can if you want to. As former editor-in-chief Elizabeth Evitts Dickinson put it, "We see this issue as a lightning rod for imaginative energy. By allowing a place for this kind of exploration, we hope to create dialogue that goes beyond what is and imagines what is possible."

Urbanite's editors will assign you to one of five teams. Each team will consist of two people of different backgrounds and fields. Team members are expected to work together to create their projects, which will run in a 2011 issue of Urbanite. Each member should also be willing to help create videos or other content for the Urbanite Project website and prepare materials for the launch event. Team members may be photographed for magazine, website, and press use; you should be prepared to be a spokesperson for the project.

Before applying, please make sure that your schedule will allow you the time to fulfill these requirements. The project can be a lot of fun, but it does require attention and diligence.

Please contact managing editor Marianne Amoss at marianne@urbanitebaltimore.com with any questions or concerns.
Good luck!

The 2011 Urbanite Project Application

Please e-mail your application to marianne@urbanitebaltimore.com.

All applications are due June 30, 2010. The Urbanite staff will review submissions.

Please take a few moments to thoughtfully address these questions. Each answer should not exceed two hundred words.

Name:

Address:

Phone:

E-mail:

1. Who are you? Briefly tell us about yourself, your background, and your interests.
2. What issue in Baltimore would you try to address through the Urbanite Project?